OUR VALUES

We maintain the highest personal and corporate ethics through honesty and fair dealing.

We are dedicated to a true partnership with our management teams, our colleagues, our investors, and all others who help us achieve our mission.

We aim to be respectful in all of our interactions.

Our focus is always on the long-term best interest of the companies and investors we serve.

Our success is grounded in hard work and rigorous analysis.

We seek to continuously build human capital.

We enjoy our work and the relationships that come from it.

We hope to make the world a better place by giving back to the communities in which we live and work.
CEO MESSAGE

Our Values are a credo by which we express the type of Firm and people we hope to be. Each individual value is important and expressed in different ways. This report profiles how our colleagues and the companies with which we partner demonstrate our Giving Back value: “We hope to make the world a better place by giving back to the communities in which we live and work.”

The examples contained herein of individual and Firm contributions highlight only a small portion of the volunteer commitments and philanthropic activities that the greater American Securities family undertakes in an effort to make the world a better place. The companies in which American Securities’ funds have had the privilege to invest also live this value through their numerous community-based charitable undertakings. Last year, we profiled the activities of Aspen Dental and Learning Care Group. This year, stories from Global Tel*Link and Blount International are showcased.

2016 marks the fifth anniversary of two programs to further encourage charitable contributions from American Securities colleagues: the Giving Back Grant, which allows each administrative colleague to direct $500 from the American Securities Foundation to charities of his or her choice, and the Matching Grant Program, in which American Securities matches donations made by all colleagues up to $5,000 per person. In this year’s report, we have compiled data from inception for both programs, which illustrates the breadth of the organizations supported by our colleagues. We are proud to support non-profit organizations that are important to our team members.

In recent years, the topic of Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) has increasingly been discussed in the private equity industry. Since the Firm’s inception, being a responsible citizen has been an implicit part of our culture, made explicit when we put our values, including Giving Back, in writing in 2008. In 2016, we continue the trend of putting into written words the values we have always espoused by adopting the written ESG policy included in this year’s report.

American Securities makes special charitable contributions each year during the holiday season. Last year, I wrote that significant numbers of families were on the move, creating the highest level of refugee children since World War II. Unfortunately, 2016 has seen a continuation of this sad situation. An unprecedented 65.3 million people around the world have been forced from their homes. Among them are nearly 21.3 million refugees, over half of whom are under the age of 18. This year, our holiday donation will support a grassroots organization providing educational and medical services to Syrian refugees in Lebanon.

I hope that you share the same pride in reading this book that I do and that each of us will further dedicate personal time and treasure in service to others.

Sincerely,

Michael G. Fisch
Managing Director & CEO
GIVING BACK DAY THROUGH THE YEARS

GIVING BACK DAY 2016

For our Giving Back Day in New York this year, we returned to Grace Institute for the third time. This year, we worked with an incoming class of 120 women.

In China, our colleagues deepened their involvement with the Shanghai QingCongquan Training Center for Children with Special Needs.
In October 2016, 74 American Securities volunteers returned to Grace Institute, this time to welcome an incoming class. We began the day with a get-to-know-you bingo game where we mingled, introduced ourselves, and tried to find people who matched the traits on our bingo cards. We then conducted one-on-one mentoring sessions in which each Grace woman met four American Securities professionals and had a chance to ask questions about the workplace. Next, we broke into eight teams for two activities. First, we introduced ourselves and the Grace students asked questions about our Firm, our professional backgrounds, and career trajectories. Second, each group was given a fictional $1,000,000 to create a non-profit serving a need in New York City, and had to compete to win a second $1,000,000. We described why we created the charity and how, whom it would serve, and how we would measure success. Each group made a presentation that included a logo and a jingle to a panel of Grace staff members who selected the winning non-profit.

Founded in 1897, over 100,000 women have come through Grace Institute’s doors. Today, Grace Institute serves as a leader in workforce development for women. It serves 300 women annually by developing advanced computer and professional skills to prepare students for administrative and customer support positions in industries such as banking, not-for-profit, health care and hospitality.
SHANGHAI QINGCONGQUAN TRAINING CENTER FOR CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

Our colleagues in China first established their relationship with the Shanghai QingCongquan Training Center for Children with Special Needs in October 2015 when they volunteered at the organization’s annual outing. They have maintained regular contact with the Center to provide support to autistic children and their families. As part of this ongoing involvement, in January 2016, the team from American Securities’ Shanghai office helped to set up and decorate the new Nanxiang Branch for the Autistic Training Center. In September 2016, American Securities volunteers spent half a day cleaning and disinfecting the classroom and teaching instruments to ready it for the children. American Securities also donated to the Qingcongquan tuition sponsorship program to help cover part of the tuition fee for families who cannot afford the full training costs.

Shanghai QingCongquan Training Center for Children with Special Needs was founded in 2004. It is a non-profit, private organization that provides professional rehabilitation training and coaching to the children with autism and their families. Their programs offer professional early-stage rehabilitation training and long-term psychological support to families. They also organize a variety of social welfare and advocacy activities to help autistic children better integrate into society.
2016 marks the fifth anniversary of two programs to further encourage charitable contributions from colleagues: the Giving Back Grant, which allows each administrative colleague to direct $500 from the American Securities Foundation to charities of his or her choice, and the Matching Grant Program, in which American Securities matches donations made by all colleagues up to $5,000 per person.
The charts below contain data from inception to present for both programs to illustrate the breadth of the organizations supported by our colleagues. The Giving Back Grant Program has resulted in 213 donations totaling nearly $83,000 to 106 organizations. The Matching Grant Program has resulted in 278 matches totaling more than $372,000 to 130 organizations.

We are proud to support non-profits that are important to our team members.
ESG POLICY

Since the Firm’s inception, being a responsible global citizen has been an implicit part of our culture.

This has evolved into the explicit written environmental, social, and governance (ESG) policy detailed to the right.
1. Consider environmental, public health, safety, and social issues associated with companies when evaluating whether to invest in a particular company or entity, as well as during our ownership period.

2. Seek to insure a safe and healthy workplace for all employees of invested companies. Pay competitive wages and benefits to employees.

3. Seek to grow and improve the companies with which we partner for long-term sustainability. Work through appropriate governance structures (e.g., board of directors) of companies with respect to environmental, public health, safety, and social issues, with the goal of improving performance and minimizing any adverse impacts on people and planet.

4. Respect basic human rights in all that we do and seek to confirm that our investments do not flow to companies that utilize child or forced labor, or maintain discriminatory policies of any kind.

5. Remain committed to compliance with applicable national, state, and local laws in all countries in which we invest, directly or indirectly. Maintain strict policies that prohibit bribery and other improper payments to public officials consistent with the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, similar laws in other countries, and the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention.

6. Report to our limited partners on these matters.
At American Securities, our involvement in charitable organizations extends beyond the Firm’s annual Giving Back Day and monetary donations. Many of our colleagues choose to devote their time volunteering at numerous charitable organizations. This year, Kelsey Muller and Bill Fry share their personal experiences with non-profit organizations that champion causes near their hearts.

Kelsey Muller, an Associate on the American Securities Investment Team, became involved with Team for Kids after realizing the need for, and benefits of, youth programs in New York City, particularly those with an athletic focus.

Team for Kids is a committed group of adult runners from around the world who add meaning to their miles by raising funds for New York Road Runner’s (NYRR) Youth and Community Services programs while training for major endurance events. The funds raised provide free or low-cost health and fitness programs to kids who would otherwise have little or no access to regular physical activity. These programs serve more than 200,000 students locally and nationally through free NYRR youth running programs, events, and resources, including more than 120,000 in New York City’s five boroughs.
In New York City, 26% of children in kindergarten through eighth grade are considered obese or severely obese with over 30% of schools lacking full-time certified physical education teachers. NYRR seeks to address these challenges by providing free running programming to 37% of New York City schools. Kelsey explains, “Growing up, my parents and teachers always pushed me to stay active and lead a healthy lifestyle. It wasn’t until I was older that I realized how incredibly lucky I was to have the opportunities to participate in youth programs such as tennis camps and running clubs.”

Upon moving to New York, Kelsey first volunteered for Free Arts NYC, a non-profit that provides underserved children with mentoring and educational arts exposure. Kelsey explained, “After speaking with the youth participants of Free Arts NYC, I realized that these children had nowhere to go after school and didn’t have the resources or access to athletic programs. As a result, I joined Team for Kids to focus on reaching children with little or no athletic experience to aid in the prevention of overweight or obese children suffering heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, and other chronic illnesses later in life.”

This summer, Kelsey increased her involvement with Team for Kids by joining NYRR Run for the Future. The program provides a fun, free way for New York City high school girls to increase their fitness, develop leadership skills, and earn a scholarship for college. Throughout the summer, the girls meet weekly and train to run a 5K race at the end of the summer. Alongside the physical activity, program participants have access to special seminars on health, nutrition, and fitness. Kelsey volunteered as a race buddy, partnering up with the girls while running to offer support, motivation, and guidance as they worked to complete their first 5K.

“I was inspired by running through the streets of Harlem at the Percy Sutton Harlem 5K Run with NYRR Run for the Future girls,” said Kelsey. “Being able to support these determined girls, who had trained all summer accomplish their goal of completing the 5K race, was incredibly rewarding.” As someone who grew up running track and field for her local public school in New Jersey, Kelsey understands the importance of motivating youth to stay active and inspiring confidence and determination early on in life. At the conclusion of the eight week program, participants engaged in 112 more minutes of physical activity each week on average and were 35% more confident in their physical abilities. “What I enjoyed most about Run for the Future was that it not only motivates girls to stay active and healthy, but also provides the skills and confidence to succeed in life while providing a college scholarship if they complete their goal.”

Kelsey also ran with Team for Kids in the 2016 TCS New York City Marathon in November, raising over $3,000 for the charity, which directly supports youth programs like the Run for the Future.
Bill Fry, a Managing Director and Head of the Resources Group, is a graduate and long-time supporter of the University of Mississippi (Ole Miss). In 2014, Bill helped established the Rebel Venture Capital Fund (RVCF) alongside the Dean of Ole Miss School of Business Administration and other alumni. The RVCF is a non-profit entity created to financially support student-led start-up business with seed money grants and is separate from the university. The fund receives its financial resources from donations from alumni and other parties interested in supporting Ole Miss student-led start-up businesses. The Dean of Ole Miss School of Business Administration commented, “RVCF is an outstanding way to connect our students with the marketplace through experiential learning, or if you prefer, ‘learning by doing.’ We are grateful for Bill’s commitment and dedication to helping us create the next generation of entrepreneurs.” RVCF’s board members hail from coast-to-coast in a variety of industries, and aim to provide an invaluable source of knowledge and mentorship to Ole Miss students.
Bill serves as Chairman of the RVCF, which evaluates applications for grants from qualified student-led start-up businesses and is open to any undergraduate or graduate student from any discipline. Working in conjunction with the Ole Miss Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, an organization that seeks “to inspire our students to create valuable new businesses and enhance the economic value of all businesses in the state of Mississippi through excellent teaching, exceptional service and world-class research,” the most promising entrepreneurial university students are selected to pitch to members of the RVCF at biannual meetings. Students are given approximately 30 minutes to present their business plan to the fund and answer any follow-up questions. The board members of the RVCF then determine whether or not to fund the new venture.

Grants ranging from $500 to $5,000 are awarded to those business plans chosen by the RVCF. Once a company receives a grant, Bill or another board member becomes an informal advisor to the company, mentoring students to help them develop business acumen.

The Director of the Ole Miss Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship said, “The RVCF is a critical partner in Ole Miss’ entrepreneurial ecosystem. Bill’s work with the RVCF mirrors the values of American Securities by focusing on the long-term best interest of the student entrepreneurial ventures through hard work and strong mentoring with an aim to build human capital. This type of opportunity cannot be learned from a textbook, only by doing. With these experiences, students will go on to start new businesses or run companies, which will become drivers of economic prosperity for their communities.”

One of the businesses Bill mentored is Vault Entertainment, which rents lighting and staging equipment and provides music services for parties. Bill’s experience working with NEP, a former American Securities portfolio company, was helpful to Vault Entertainment in the evaluation of capital investment needs and pricing models. Bill helped the student team expand their service beyond parties to festivals and achieve maximum revenue on their equipment. Vault Entertainment has been a huge success and doubled in revenue every semester for the past two years.

To date, the RVCF has granted over $50,000 to 20 student-led companies.
OUR PARTNER COMPANIES

The companies in which we have invested share many of American Securities’ values, including Giving Back, and their activities are inspiring. This year, we profile Global Tel*Link (GTL) and Blount International.
Founded: 1989
Headquarters: Reston, VA
Industry: Corrections Technology
Date of Investment: December 2011
Website: www.gtl.net

Through GTL’s company-wide “Give To Live” charity initiative, numerous contributions are made annually through event sponsorships. GTL focuses its charitable donations and events on opportunities that give back to its local communities.

Emergency Outreach - Louisiana Disaster Flooding

GTl assisted the victims of the massive flooding in Louisiana, which was declared a Major Disaster by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) on August 14, 2016. Entire homes and personal belongings were lost in a matter of hours. GTL collected and donated goods and supplies to help residents of Louisiana in the aftermath of the catastrophic flooding. GTL offices in Mobile, Alabama collected various staples needed in the relief efforts, including bottled water, baby supplies, toiletries, towels, bed linens, insect repellent, and bleach. The donated items were then delivered to the Fairhope, Alabama Police Department for transportation to Livingston Parish, Louisiana.
Ronald McDonald House
GTL proudly supports Ronald McDonald House Charities in helping make a home-away-from-home for families whose children receive treatment at nearby hospitals. Through local sponsorships, fundraisers, donation drives, and collecting toiletry items, employees help keep the families staying at Ronald McDonald House more comfortable. Employees also volunteer to cook meals for families. In addition, employees have participated in special events, such as the Dallas Hot Chocolate 15K Run and Girls Just Wanna Have Fun, both benefiting the Ronald McDonald House.

Down Syndrome Buddy Walk
The Buddy Walk® was established in 1995 by the National Down Syndrome Society to celebrate Down Syndrome Awareness month in October and to promote acceptance and inclusion of people with Down Syndrome. Multiple GTL offices sponsored and donated over $5,000, and participated in the National Down Syndrome Society’s Annual Buddy Walk®. GTL considers it a privilege to help promote awareness and educate the public about the capabilities of those with Down Syndrome.

Making Strides
Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walks are the largest network of breast cancer awareness events in the nation, uniting communities with a shared determination to help free the world from the pain and suffering of breast cancer. Passionate walk participants raise critical funds that enable the American Cancer Society to fund innovative research, provide free information and support to anyone touched by this debilitating illness, and help increase survival rates via early detection screening. GTL offices across the country have supported and continue to participate in local Making Strides Walks. Over 200 employees, friends, and family members walked representing Give To Live teams. In 2016 alone, GTL corporate matched all Give To Live Team donations made to the American Cancer Society – Making Strides program, totaling almost $13,000.

Giving Back Throughout Our Communities
GTL also supports local charitable community-based non-profits where employees are making a difference for the communities in which they live. In 2016, GTL employees participated in events such as the 10K Conoco Phillips Rodeo Run to benefit the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ Educational Fund, and the Ride Strong Bike-a-thon that supports the Paul Anderson Youth Home. GTL employees embody the spirit of giving during the holidays when the company participates in the Prison Fellowship Ministries’ Angel Tree Program (providing holiday gifts to children of incarcerated parents), the Salvation Army’s Forgotten Angels program (providing holiday gifts to children whose names do not get selected from the Angel Tree), and the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital’s Patient Wish List program (providing toys for children who spend their holidays in the hospital). This hospital is a world leader in the treatment of pediatric orthopedic conditions and treats children with scoliosis, clubfoot, hand disorders, hip disorders, limb length differences and sports injuries, as well as certain related arthritic and neurological disorders.

The National Forest Foundation
The National Forest Foundation (NFF) promotes the health and enjoyment of the 193-million acre National Forest System in the United States. By directly engaging Americans and leveraging private and public funding, the NFF improves forest health through thousands of conservation and stewardship projects.

Blount partnered with NFF to support the Trees for US program, which targets high-priority reforestation needs across the National Forest System. Since the NFF began its tree-planting programs in 2008, it has planted more than six million trees in National Forests around the country that have suffered natural disasters like wildfire, storms, insects, and disease. Reforesting the United States’ National Forests improves watersheds by reducing sediment and other pollutants that enter streams and rivers, restores wildlife habitat, sequesters carbon, and improves air quality.

Through the partnership, funds have been designated to promote life-skill development through 4-H education. Many of Blount’s customers and team members have been positively influenced by 4-H programs over the years.

4-H works in partnership with 100 universities to provide life-changing programs that are research-backed. The 4-H agriculture-focused curriculum was developed in cooperation with experts from the National Consortium of State Agriculture in the Classroom programs, Extension 4-H professionals, and specialists from the field of childcare education. Its intent is to promote agricultural literacy among young people during out-of-school time while developing their understanding, appreciation and application of science through a variety of hands-on agriculturally based activities. Programs are provided through 4-H clubs, camps, after school & school enrichment programs in every county and parish in the United States.
